NEW FREIGHT YARDS AT GODFREY READY

St. Paul Company Has Spent Millions on "Interchange Yards" Near Chicago.

Officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway announced yesterday that the new freight interchange yards of the company at Godfrey, Ill., will be opened for the handling of both inbound and outbound traffic within the next few weeks.

This addition to the facilities of the company will represent an outlay of several million dollars and will result in a large volume of freight interchange on its system being transferred to the outskirts of the city. The yards, which are three miles long and one-fourth of a mile wide, extend from Mannheim to Bensenville. Construction work was begun four years ago and sufficient progress was made to enable the company to use the yards for the storage of freight cars during the last two years.

Within the last year the company has constructed a roundhouse, machine shop and carpenter shop on the premises. Two artesian wells already have been sunk and present plans provide for the sinking of five others. There were 850 acres purchased by the road at the time it was decided to establish the Godfrey yards, and of this amount 600 acres will be used for present purposes. The yard will be extended as rapidly as the volume of the company's freight business expands.

A viaduct, which with its approaches will be 2,000 feet long, is being constructed to replace two roads between Mannheim and Bensenville.

WILL BE EXAMINED IN SERIOUS CHARGE

Raney Hedendorf Accused With Larceny from Person of John Anderson Who Is Badly Beaten.

Raney Hedendorf, convicted several months ago of stealing a woman's cloak, and more recently implicated in charges of stealing brass fittings from the Hanson Furniture factory, will be examined in the municipal court before Judge Fifield Wednesday morning on the charge of larceny from the person of John Anderson. It is alleged in the complaint that Hedendorf stole $20 and a watch worth $15 from Anderson. The victim of the robbery was found by the police late that night and was in such condition that he was unable to give a very coherent account of what had taken place. He is a stranger in the city and unfamiliar with the streets, but as nearly as can be determined from his story thus far, the assault and robbery must have taken place in the postoffice alley. Anderson claims to have been in Hedendorf's company all Friday afternoon and evening. He is employed by a gardener near the city. Hedendorf was arraigned in court last Saturday morning.

MUST GET TO WORKING OR GO TO POORHOUSE

Ben Dixon Given Three Days of Grace With Commitment Promise in Event of Failure.

Ben Dixon must leave town or get to work before next Thursday or he is committed to the county poor farm. This was the ultimatum handed him this morning by Judge Fifield with whom was filed a complaint by Stanley Co. against Dixon. Chief of Police Ransom was sworn and testified that Dixon had scarcely any occupation, that he usually saw him when he was on a spree and loafing, that his habits of living were not such as to conduce to good health, and that he had no visible means of support. He believed him likely to become a public charge unless he mended his ways very soon. Similar testimony was given by Patrolman Peter Champion and Poormaster Asa Anderson. Dixon had little to say for himself but asserted that he intended to get to work and that he had a job in the gravel banks near Beloit, not long ago. He admitted that he had been arrested three times in the last two weeks on charges of drunkenness, but said that the same held true of the last six months. Judge Fifield advised him to get out of the county of his former associates who could not do him any good and were largely responsible for his degradation.

FIRE TRUCK DEMONSTRATOR HAS RETURNED TO COLUMBUS

Michael Shafer, the demonstrator in the service of the Seagrave Company of Columbus, Ohio, who has been in the city for the last two or three weeks instructing the firemen in the operation of the motor chemical hose truck sold to the city has returned home.

This morning he took the truck out for a trial run and climbed the Court street hill on high gear although there was no opportunity to get up speed before ascending the grade. The machine will be placed in its permanent position in the east side station by June 15. The city has not yet paid for the truck but will probably tender payment in a few days.

STOLEN AUTOMOBILE FINALLY RECOVERED

Car Belonging to Thomas Steel of Union Bought Back to Evansville Saturday.

[Special to the News.]
Evansville, Wis., June 9.—The automobile stolen from Thos. Steele's garage a week ago was returned to this city on Saturday evening, the thieves having abandoned the car near Portage where it was discovered by local authorities covered with hay and debris. Monday evening the suspects left the car at a farm house near Portage after an unsuccessful attempt to trade it off. The two young men, each carrying a loaded shotgun, were of such an inferior quality that the car balked, and after telling a farmer that they were in haste to the bedside of sick relatives they placed the car in the barn completely covering it with hay. Searching parties from here recovered the car Saturday, bringing it here Saturday evening; it was in fair condition and was driven here with little trouble.

Chief Benson will probably capture the suspects within the next few days, as their pictures and descriptions are well advertised.

Deputy Sheriff E. H. Libby, who has had charge of the case, has been joined by C. S. Whipple at Janesville that the two men, Ray Norton and Bert Kreuger, who are wanted for the theft of the car, are supposed to be on their way to Milwaukee, South Dakota, where they have recently been employed. City Marshal Cal Broughton is at Milwaukee at present and is keeping a sharp lookout for the men. His effects their capture they will be brought back to Rock County to face charges. A warrant for their arrest is at present in the hands of Sheriff Whipple.

Kreuger worked for Mr. Steele during 1911 and was recently released on parole, his parole time having expired some time ago. Deputy Libby secured his clue as to the whereabouts of the men and the hiding place of the machine from Norton's sister, who lives near Portage.

To Test Air in Room.

A simple way to tell whether your room is properly ventilated is to place a wide necked bottle of water, into which you have put half an ounce of lime water, in the room, letting it remain uncovered over night. If in the morning the lime water is milk the ventilation is bad. If the lime water becomes milk on your covering the bottle mouth with your hand and shaking the vessel the ventilation is not sufficiently good. If the lime water remains clear the air of that room is pure.

Folly of Haste.

To be in haste is to be in anxiety and distress of mind. It is to mistrust Providence, and to doubt that the issue of all events is in wiser hands than our own. It is to disturb the course of nature, and put overmuch confidence in the importance of our own endeavors.—Henry Van Dyke, "The Ruling Passion."

UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD.
That there are two sides to all questions is clearly demonstrated just now in the discussion of the alien and law of California. Just now attention is so much attracted to that western country that the westerner is interested in any other section of the country, is very natural because they are obliged to meet the proposition at close range.

From their viewpoint the brotherhood of man loses significance, for sentiment is lost in self-protection, and they are face to face with a problem which means disaster if not properly solved.

The Honorable Albert Johnson, representative from the state of Washington, delivered a speech in the house the other day, which is well worth reading, as it sheds new light on the perplexing question. He said in part:

"In my opinion, a thousand Chinese a month pouring into sparsely settled British Columbia to cut timber and saw lumber to compete with the products of our sturdy men of the woods is fully as bad as the present pouring of 6,000 immigrants per day into thickly settled New York."

"I hope that the United States will soon return to a tariff wall—a reasonable, rational, expert tariff wall—high enough to guarantee protection, and then I hope that we will re-enforce that wall with another protective wall against undesirable immigration."

"With the first wall you protect the man who invests his capital, makes the goods, or grows the product, and provides the American standard of living. With the other wall, you protect the man who is on the job—you take care of the foreigners who are here, and you cut down the influx of undesirable from the south of Europe, against whom we have 'conserved' all that we used to offer freely to the people from the north of Europe."

"Why are we surprised that they begin to hate this country before they can find any reason to love it? Is it any wonder that these self-borne horrors quickly become the dupes and disciples of such vicious agitators as Bill Haywood and his platform of the Industrial Workers of the World—no concern as to questions of right and wrong, no terms with employers, destruction and bloody revolution? It will take not only our tariff wall and our immigration wall, but a penitentiary wall to stop this kind of treason."

"Why are we surprised? How can we be surprised at the red flag movement when Vice President Marshall, in an address at New York, undertakes to warn the rich, and only succeeds in striking a note that gives the Socialists more sympathy than they have had since their prophet 'Old Hoss' Wayland, of the Appeal to Reason, ran afoul of the Mann law and committed suicide, and more good cheer than they ever enjoyed since their disciple, Victor Berger, left congress and expatriated himself in their eyes by purchasing an upholstered mahogany-finished motor boat."

"Roosevelt did not stand at Armageddon. He stood at Chicago and preached near-socialism, almost revolution, contempt for law, and doctrines that lead to destruction."

"Haywood waves the red flag at Paterson, N. J., and preaches anarchy and sabotage. Ettor advises the striking waiters to take the food of the rich. Jane Adams wants pensions for everybody. All are preaching the universal brotherhood of man. All have different motives. In trying to save the country they are doing much to destroy it. They are teaching employees to actually hate those who employ them. They seem to have forgotten that the universal brotherhood must include the 900,000,000 people of China, Japan, and India. In this great progressive wave will these seething hordes come up to our level, or will our 100,000,000 drop to theirs, and when?"

"My friend, Mr. Sisson, of Mississippi, sees the peril, as his address of this forenoon clearly shows. He speaks his convictions, but I dare, in my weak and humble way, to warn not only the gentleman from Mississippi, but the honorable the Vice President of the United States and the honorable the President of the United States—who by coming on this floor has expressed a desire to take part in this debate—that every time an industry of this country is slaughtered or an American citizen is made to compete with a 9-cent Japanese, that sad day is hastened, for, my friends, the great international brotherhood with its fatherless and churchless children, with its collectivism and its fifty-seven varieties of impossible dreams, will drag us down ten thousand degrees before it can lift us one little."

way of thinking. Of course this is not the same kind of federal interference that was objected to a dozen years ago, but it looks mighty like it.

The Milwaukee Sentinel comments on this latest action of our senior senator in the following editorial:

"A senator of the United States, whose time ought to be occupied with national interests and duties, is attempting to dictate to the legislature and indicate what he demands, and this is the identical person who once rallied against federal officials' interfering with state affairs."

"He proclaims that the reasons the governor presents for vetoing the bill in which he is interested are 'trivial.' The senator is very apt to think that the views of people who do not agree with him are trivial."

"We are not in the habit of over-praising Gov. McGovern, but it is only fair to say that the governor's veto message recently published is an able and convincing argument against the premature attempt to undo a referendum, and thereby discredit and stultify this mode of appeal."

The primary law is accomplishing its purpose by perpetuating in office its promoters. The machine now in control is a close corporation with half-bearing equipment. The "independent voter" is a spectator who furnishes the "mon," when the emissaries call on him, conscious that he is a citizen of the greatest commonwealth in the union, and glad of the opportunity to contribute freely of his earthly substance, as occasion demands. Next to a bull on the other fellow's neck there's nothing more comforting than a delusion.

The minimum wage proposition, just now being discussed so glibly by various state legislatures, is on a par with a lot of fads which masquerade under the guise of reform. The vice commission seems to be obsessed with the notion that the standard of morality is based on money. The industrial and commercial world may need regulating along some lines, but wages can never be established by law nor universal virtue guaranteed at an advance of two dollars a week in a minimum wage scale.

It will be months before the Milwaukee street bridge is even started and in the meantime the half-burned, wavery supports of the temporary rails on the south side of the bridge will remain just as they are. It is a fine advertisement for Janesville and its alleged thrift and prosperity that it can not afford a few two-by-fours and a few minutes' time of a carpenter to put it into at least safe and presentable shape.

This is graduation week at the high school and a gala period for the students generally. Next comes the hard realization that school days are over and life's work opens for many. Some few will go to colleges and universities but the great majority will go immediately into the daily grind for an existence.

Several seniors in an eastern university have been refused their diplomas because they can't swim. Next we know, college students will be held up for not knowing anything about United States history.

Anyhow, those nine Cornell students who are taking a course in cooking won't have to say anything to their wives about the way their mothers used to do it.

With LaFollette going for McGovern, and McGovern going for LaFollette, the outlook for harmony in the progressive ranks is not very encouraging.

Considering the difficulty the senators have in recognizing them, why doesn't the president compel each of the lobbyists to provide himself with a file and drum corps?

Dr. Woods Hutchinson says there is nothing the matter with the American stomach. It is evident that the doctor never attended a clambake.

Senator Penrose has declared for direct primaries. Next we may expect to hear from Uncle Sereno Payne.

It's rather hard on the Mexican insurgents. They are compelled to go right on insurrecting with nobody paying any attention to them.

And to think that all these years the senators didn't have sagacity enough to look under the bed every night for lobbyists.

In spite of all the free notices we don't know even yet what brand of soap "September Morn" advertises.

Get a rope twenty feet long, toss one end of it in the air and leave it there. Faster the other end of the rope to the stake. At the top of the rope is a cage. Scientists and bugologists tell us that fleas are very fond of cheese, so you place a piece of cheese in the cage.

The flea is walking along on the ground and when he gets to where the rope is he hears the cheese. So he climbs the rope, hand over hand, and when he reaches the top he enters the cage but he knows not where to go. Thereupon, while the flea is eating the cheese, you place a dish of icecream alongside of the stake. You then climb up the rope half way and cut a piece out of the rope, but the flea does not know this. He is still eating the cheese, and when he gets to the open space which you have cut out, he falls into

Edward Jehoshaphat Bowman, our large enthusiastic and bald assistant district attorney, was in Washington last week trying to find out if it would be any use to turn Democratic at this stage of the game, when he paused in his investigations to take off his hat and mop his fevered brow. He was standing behind a clump of bushes in the botanical gardens and a rubber neck wagon went by on the other side. A sweet young thing aboard the rubber wagon beheld Ed's polished reservoir of thought protruding above the surrounding shrubbery and exclaimed: "Oh, stifle what is that?" "That," said the guide, "that is frequently mistaken for the dome of the capitol building, but it is not. It is an egg of the great auk, the only one in existence in this country."

HOLD EXAMINATIONS CITY HALL TONIGHT

Candidates for Policemen and Firemen to be inspected by Commission.

Examinations for candidates for positions as policemen and firemen will be conducted by the Fire and Police Commission at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Twelve applications for positions as policemen have been filed with Secretary Arthur Jones. Six men are needed in the fire department.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Methodist Picnic: The Cargill M. E. Sunday school is planning on its annual picnic. The picnic mentioned yesterday will be either June 18th or the 25th. The fact that Wednesday is a half holiday for the grocers is largely the reason for holding the picnic on the latter date. The picnic will be held either at Yost Park or at the Crystal Springs Park. The majority in the Sunday school favor the trip up the river.

Old Firehorse Dead: "Billy," for thirty years one of the horses in the team that drew the New York patrol wagon, is dead. Two years ago the team was sold to Frank Kimball and was in his possession when Billy died. Only last week he was sold to the city and was in the service of the fire department, of which his length of service is sufficient testimony. He was about six years old when he entered the service.

BRIDGE CONTRACTS AWARDED SATURDAY

Highway Commissioner Moore Gets Substantial Reduction From Original Bids Offered.

Contracts for two cement bridges, one in the town of Harmony and the other in the town of Spring Valley, both on state and county aid highways, were let by County Highway Commissioner Chas. E. Moore, on Saturday to E. L. Boyles, a Beloit contractor. The contract price for the Harmony bridge was $625 against the bid of $1,100 by the Freeport Bridge Company, also offered in competition the week before. Mr. Moore rejected the bids of the bridge companies and is satisfied to secure the contracts at much more reasonable prices effecting a big saving in the money to be expended for bridge building during the present year.

Mr. Moore reports that the state and county aid highway construction work in Rock county is well under way in ten townships and that the work in the whole county will be finished early in the season. He has urged contractors to employ large forces in order to rush the work to completion. Mr. Balesley, of the state highway commission, was here one day last week and went on an inspection trip over some of the Rock county district, particularly the town of Spring Valley, and Center. He was well satisfied with the progress which is being made here. Mr. Balesley has nine counties in the southeastern section of the state in his inspection district.

HOLDS LOCAL AUTO ORDINANCE INVALID

Attorney General W. C. Owen Declares That City Cannot Limit Speed to Eight Miles An Hour.

Janesville's automobile ordinance is invalid in so far as it restricts the speed of motor-cycle and automobiles to eight miles an hour according to an opinion given out last Saturday by Attorney General W. C. Owen. This provision, which applied to a restricted section of the city comprising the downtown district, conflicts with the state statute which provides a speed limit of fifteen miles an hour upon automobiles and motorcycles within corporate limits.

Golf, formerly termed a rich man's game, is fast acquiring a hold on the other members of society not reckoning their fortunes in sums of six or more figures. Golf links for plebeians are springing up all over the country. In addition, more and more women are taking up the sport such that within a few years it is expected that the more or less enigmatic phrases of "fore" and "two down" will be as common as "base" and "terms" are today.

There are stars in baseball who could see something to their own profit if they would watch Walter Johnson. Several years ago he came from a little town in Idaho, and immediately made a reputation as a great pitcher. He was bashful, retiring and unassuming. Today Walter Johnson is the same as when he arrived. To be sure he has acquired polish by associations, but he wears the same sized hat he did the day Cliff Blankenship escorted him to Washington. Johnson never loafs and he never fights with anybody.

Giving up two bouts that would have brought him $2,000, Leach Cross has gone to California. He wants to become thoroughly acquainted before his fight with Bud Anderson at Vernon, July 4th.

In an effort to revive public interest in horse racing in New York, August Belmont has announced that he will have free races on a certain day each week. This is the first time in the history of horse racing that the public will be admitted to see horses run free of charge.

Joe Engle of Washington, according to his manager, has too much stuff. Usually a pitcher has some particular ball on which he places his main dependence, but Clark Griffith thinks that Engle has yet to find what is the best of his large stock. Possessed of plenty of speed, a good curve and the necessary nerve, all that Engle has to do now is to master control in order to earn for himself a place in the regular rotation of the Nationals' twirlers.

In Boston the fans are still hopeful that the Red Sox will overhaul the league-leading Athletics. But those conversant with the antics of baseball declare it almost an impossible task for the Red Sox to cut down the big lead of the Philadelphia players and still have enough power left to hit the tape ahead of the parade.

Navin and Comiskey always laugh heartily when a newspaper man comes to them asking for information in regard to the story that the White Sox may go to the Chicago White Sox. But then, magnates have laughed before. Hughie Jennings doesn't seem to be able to handle the Georgia star while Navin is beginning to see that it takes more than a .400 batter to land a pennant. Jimmie Callahan has the man Navin wants in Chase, and it is a certain cinch that if anybody can handle the southern firebrand, James Callahan, manager of the White Sox, is that individual.

At last the secret is out. Luther McCarty's fortune, variously estimated from $35,000 to $100,000, is found to be valued only at $15,000. Fighters after all, even though champions, don't seem to have very much once they shuffle off this mortal coil.

As was predicted, Cleveland and Chicago seem to be the only two western teams who are holding up the prestige of the western country on the diamond in the east. St. Louis and Detroit are meeting almost inhuman treatment in their bouts with Washington and Philadelphia this far.

Frank Chance of the New York Highlanders is said to have become so surly over the showing his team has made that he even talks at the newspaper writers. That will be the last straw, for if anyone, the writers have been upholding the former peerless leader in all his policies, to date.

Heart-to-Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

BOLD FAST THAT WHICH IS GOOD. Froth and driftwood are seen on the surface of the stream. Below the waters are clear and pure. Likewise froth and driftwood are seen on the surface of the river of humanity. Superficial observers may mistake these for the stream itself, may jump to the conclusion that all the river is made up of bubbles and rubbish. Only those who look deeper see the clear waters.

Today the human river is flowing rapidly. It is bank full and moving with a speed never observed before. It is at times like these that the amount of froth and driftwood seems greater than usual. Yet at these times the volume of pure and clear water is also greater.

Among the refuse carried on the surface of the stream are divorce, graft, corruption, public and private dishonesty, national and personal evils. Be not deceived by these superficial appearances. Look deeper. There you will find pure water; the life of the people. For the most part the masses are living honest, God fearing lives. The great human current is wholesome and clear. The common folk are sound, as they have ever been. They are true to the old standards. They hold fast that which is good.

I believe in man because I believe in God, in whose image man is made. I have great faith in my fellows. Nor is this faith seriously disturbed because one here and there may happen to go astray. I have faith even in him, for the slip in the path may be but temporary. I know there are ever some froth and driftwood on the stream, but I also know that in the drops below the primal virtues, the eternal verities, flow on. I have drunk of the stream of life and know that it is good.

Be not deceived. It is true that goodness, honesty, fair dealing, conscientious work, high ideals and right deeds win now, as they have ever won. The only real success is gained through the exercise of these qualities. The seeming prosperity of crooked men is as short lived as the bubble on the water. In this age we are trying all things, but we must not forget to hold fast that which is good.

Summary. White Sox win. After nine innings of poorly played baseball the White Sox pushed enough runs across the plate to beat the Safady baseball nine by a nineteen to sixteen score. The contest was held at Crystal Springs.

Bad baseball mired the contest; errors and poor judgment playing a prominent part in the large score. The condition of the diamond was so bad that ground balls were almost sure to go for a hit. Britt pitched for the Sox and at times proved able to quell the lunch boys in a creditable manner but was hit hard during the latter stages of the game.

By hitting the delivery of Schuller for extra bases the Sox pushed nine runs across up to the fourth and strengthened their lead by three more in the fifth. The Safady nine were not far behind and when the seventh

WEATHER CONDITIONS. A great area of high barometer is stationary over the eastern half of the continent and is accompanied by clear skies and outflowing winds from its center over the lake region. The clear skies have been favorable to rapid radiation of heat from the ground so that unusually low temperatures prevail in the north central states, with light frosts in Wisconsin, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania. Relatively low barometer prevails in the Gulf of Mexico, with general rains throughout the south. These were heavy in Oklahoma and Louisiana, Oklahoma City reporting 1.06 inches and Shreveport 2.12 inches. The barometer is also low in the plateau region and on the Pacific coast, and rains have fallen in the Columbia basin.

Lon McDonald, the Boston trainer, is generally up around the top of the money winners when the Grand Circuit tabulation is made each year. McDonald also has driven Rob Douglas (2:04 1/4). He won the M. and M. one year with Margin when Margin was crippled. Only good training kept her in the race. Another of McDonald's stars is Billy Burke. This year McDonald has a splendid stable, the strongest in three years.

BELOIT MOOSE WIN FROM JANESVILLE

Poon Fielding by the Cardinals Allows Beloit Team to Win by 14 to 9 Score.

The Beloit Moose team gained revenge for the defeat which the Cardinals gave them three weeks ago, in yesterday's contest at the driving park by a fourteen to nine score. The visitors played far superior ball to the locals, giving their pitcher better support while the locals bungled on easy assists and aided the Beloit team to put marks in the run column.

Burger started the game for the Cardinals but after the Beloiters slammed his delivery for six runs in the second, four for the Cardinals. Burger had enough and "Andy" Connell went in and made the batters from the Line City behave in a little more reasonable manner. Four runs were made off Andy and the support behind him was disgraced. Williams, of Beloit college, was the slab artist for the Moose team and despite his reputation the Cardinals slammed his offerings hard and often enough to win any game. Stelly, Hell and Sullivan knocked triples off Williams and during the eight innings he derickked and Wootton went in to stave off defeat. He had enough on the ball to hold the Cards, and their big lead gained during the early stages of the game proved large enough to defeat the Cardinals.

Effective pitching by Le Pere, for the Janesville Nationals who only allowed the Fourth Ward State four scattered hits won the game for the Nationals by an eight to four score. By winning this game the Nationals have just claim to the city championship in their class and are ready to defend it against any team in the city. The contest was held at Dunn's pasture and the grass diamond made good fielding impossible and as a result errors were numerous on both sides.

TRAINING A CHILD FIRST DUTY OF PARENT

NATURAL AFFECTION LEADS PARENT TO PREPARE HIS CHILD FOR LIFE.

HEALTHY BODY NEEDED

Foundation For Efficiency—The Rev.
Dr. Beaton Preaches Able Children's Day Sermon.

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old he will not depart from it."
"This verse, the sixth in the twenty-second chapter of the Book of Proverbs, is a truth known and affirmed to all races and religions," said the Rev. Dr. Beaton, pastor of the Congregational church, in opening his morning sermon Sunday.

"The Book of Proverbs is not the work of any one man, or the wisdom of any one man; it is the accumulated wisdom of the race through a thousand years, and therefore so permanent and inflexible.

"There has never been any difference as to the importance of the training of children, the duty of the parent, generation training the generation that is rising, not among any people that is old in its achievements and civilization. The highest expression of the civilization of a race is the training it gives its children.

"In the present day we have come to see that this training must be of a very different kind than it used to be, but this difference is more apparent than real. New conditions must be met with new methods, but we apply and impart the old truths. It is important that we teach our children that the creation of the new does not necessarily destroy the old. Reform and renovation is not necessarily incalculable.

"There are three great impulses to the training of the child: natural affection, religion and patriotism. Any religious doctrine which goes against natural affection is fatal to destruction. The parent will not hold to any faith that in its teaching and practice is against the well being of his child.

"All religions, Mohammedanism and Buddhism, as well as Christianity recognize the necessity of training the child. They have their schools and their teachers to perpetuate their faith and customs.

"The idea of patriotism as an incentive to the training of the young was brought out principally under the Greeks, who educated their youth to enhance the glory of their nation, and win its renown in war, in art, and in letters. Natural affection may be said to have been the impulse toward the training of children among the Teuton people, and with us, citizenship is a powerful motive.

"We have found out in modern times that education means the training of the youth for real life. No child is really fitted for life unless it has a healthy body. First of all must come physical fitness, or the child begins life under a heavy handicap. Confirmation of the blood is fatal, whether it comes through the sin of the parent or some other source.

"The protection of the child, especially in its first two or three tender years, has largely been taken over by the government. The city of New York is spending on its health department, most of it to save the babies and give them a fair chance for survival. The death rate has been cut down from 35 to 15 in a thousand at the city of New York since made this illegal time as the result of hygiene, medical care, and sanitation. Thousands of families, once lived in cellars and single room apartments but the laws since made this illegal time as the result of hygiene, medical care, and sanitation. Thousands of families, once lived in cellars and single room apartments but the laws since made this illegal time as the result of hygiene, medical care, and sanitation. Thousands of families, once lived in cellars and single room apartments but the laws since made this illegal time as the result of hygiene, medical care, and sanitation.

"If you are expecting me to say something about religion, it is hardly necessary at this time. If the provision of pure milk for the babies, saving their lives, training a child for an adult member of society, giving the boys and girls a fair chance in life, is not religion then I do not know what religion is.

"But I would not have you think that training in efficiency and a healthy body is all that is necessary to success. Without moral training a boy may be inefficient, a parasite upon society. He must have character, and this has to be trained into him. He cannot be good by merely being told to be good. Reverence, respect, things, a sense of duty, responsibility to God and man, devotion to parents and family are inculcated slowly and need be worked into the very fiber of his being."

GEORGE STEPHENSON.

GEORGE STEPHENSON, the author of the steam locomotive and the Janesville catfish, was born in England on this date, in the year 1781. He was a poor boy, and if he had not thought of the locomotive he would probably have remained poor at a very gratifying rate of speed.

Beer Exposed to Light for 5 Minutes Becomes Undrinkable

This is not our statement, but the deliberate opinion of one of the most renowned scientists in the world. Read the entire statement:

"We have tested beers repeatedly, placing the bottles in the direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure, found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable on account of the peculiar odor developed. The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are, therefore, commendable."—Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology.

It is not enough that beer be brewed pure, it must be kept pure.

Many Americans prefer beer in a light bottle. Most brewers follow the course of least resistance.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light. Schlitz is sold in Brown Bottles to protect its purity from the brewery to your glass.

Gloria? What of her? It was always Gloria, Gloria, Gloria, running through his mind, knocking at the door of his heart.

Always of the Gloria who had spurned him, he thought, for he knew nothing of the part she had played in the lodging house. It was not a situation to contemplate with equanimity—this living in the same town with the woman he loved madly. Were Belmont of some size, a city like St. Louis or Pittsburgh, there would be the probability that their paths would seldom cross. Yet in Belmont everyone knew everyone else and never a week passed but that they all met at least in passing.

It would be impossible for him to avoid Gloria altogether. He was frank enough to acknowledge to himself that he would undoubtedly seek those places where there would be some certainty of his meeting her. To be in the same town, with her meant that he could not give her up. Yet he knew that any overtures he might make would be worse than useless. He felt that her prejudice was such that there could never be established that bond without which matrimony is unholy. The ruined pool may again be calm, the mirrored mirror may again be clear, but he believed in her ignorance she would feel that when two hearts but once have broken, truth there is no alchemy that love distills can make the past to live again and the dead present as though it had not been.

The harder he tried to fight against this conviction of what he should do, the more Wright was convinced that there was but one course for him to pursue. It would be best for him to leave Belmont. This would be not for a week or a month, but for all time. It would be necessary for him to dispose of the paper; but this he could do through a broker. He was quite willing to let it go at a sacrifice, to lose what he had himself put into it, so anxious was he to escape from Belmont in search of that magical flower, heart's ease.

Having made up his mind, Wright went to bed, but not to sleep. The remaining hours of darkness he rolled and tossed. It was not the bruises he had received in the fight at Noonan's that kept him awake, annoying as they were. It was always the one thought—Gloria, Gloria, Gloria.

Morning brought diversions which slightly relieved the tension. There were two editorials to be written upon the political situation. This was followed by conferences with men on the paper, and then came the letter to the newspaper broker announcing that the News was for sale. He did not dictate this to his secretary, but wrote it out laboriously in long-hand.

The morning was more than half over when he began to pack. It was Wright's intention to leave Belmont that night; ostensibly on a vacation for the purpose of recuperation after the hard campaign. The owner of the News felt, however, that he would never return.

The many steps necessitated in packing taught him how weak he was, and after lunch he called in Patty, the little daughter of his landlady, to help him. They had always been the best friends, and her sorrow when she learned he was going away on a long vacation was genuine. The child was of much assistance, bringing all the smaller things from the living room into the bedroom where the real work of packing was being done.

When the packing was about completed the little girl remembered that she had brought a doll with her. In searching for it in a pile of clothing beside Wright's trunk she felt something hard. To satisfy her curiosity she drew it forth, to discover, instead of her doll, that it was a framed picture of a young woman. It was a picture of Gloria which had appeared in a weekly society paper.

Patty had helped wrap the framed pictures in old newspapers, and as she brought Gloria's picture, she exclaimed triumphantly, "Here's another picture, Mr. Joey."

tiously when packing the things he had planned to take with him for immediate use. For the fraction of a minute there had been a debate in his mind as to whether or not he would be weak enough to carry her picture with him. He had finally placed it under a pile of clothing beside his steamer trunk.

"It's extremely good of you to find that picture," the man remarked with the gravity he sometimes assumed in treating Patty as one of equal years and understanding. "I doubt if I should have found it."

"I was hunting for my dolly, and looked under a pile of things and found the pretty picture lady." She gazed at the picture of Gloria admiringly.

"Really, Patty, you astonish me! Your perspicacity is exceeded only by your perseverance. I don't think I should ever have found that picture. Just leave it on the table there, and don't—if you love me—lose your dolly any more, please; at least not until all my things are securely packed."

Patty was just on the point of asking the name of the young woman who had so taken her fancy, when the door-bell rang. With the announcement that no one was at home and she had to answer the bell, she scampered off.

Wright picked up the picture and gazed at it intently. He was sacrificing all for her. Was the sacrifice worth while? The question would have been an idle one. He loved her, had never loved anyone else and never would love anyone else. No sacrifice was too great which would mean any increased happiness for her. The sound of some one being brought to his rooms by Patty caused him to put the picture hastily face downward on the table. The door opened to admit Dr. Hayes.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Wright," he exclaimed cordially as he came forward with hand outstretched. "I hope you'll let an opponent drop in to congratulate you on winning the election."

The editor's face lit up with pleasure as they clasped hands.

"Thank you, old man. It's awfully good of you to stop by before I started on a little vacation. The News won its fight; but of course we can't expect this to be the end of the contest, can we?"

The coroner shook his head dolefully.

"Don't ask me. I've ceased to be a political prophet. Do you think it'll be a boy, doc?" they ask. "I don't know," says I, shaking my head solemnly. I'm going to get that wise about politics. I don't prophesy anything now until after it happens. But I never thought I'd live to see the day that Belmont would go against us, I'm out of politics."

Wright smiled. "Isn't that what they all say—the day after?"

"It's the truth this time. My wife

"That Surely Was a Raw Frame-Up They Handed You."

has done nothing but read the riot act to me for the last two days."

"I imagine Mrs. Hayes is a purist in politics."

"Well, I can't blame her," the doctor admitted. "She's been poking around down in the river wards, and that surely was a raw frame-up they handed you. She got onto it, and she's dead sore."

Wright had discussed the affair with Dr. Norton and had also told Arthur Morrison what little he knew. This was the first intimation coming from the ring that they even knew of the occurrence. The newspaper man was curious to know the ring version of it. Dr. Hayes' remark afforded him the opportunity to approach the matter excitedly.

"What was Mrs. Hayes' connection with that—ah—little episode?" he asked. "I gathered from Dr. Norton that in some way or other she knew something about it."

Dr. Hayes stared at him in amazement. Miss Kerr had never uttered a word, yet he readily believed, as did the others, that both Wright and she were the only ones who could tell the story. The woman in whose room they had been found was still in a delirious condition at the city hospital and nothing could be learned from her. Although Kerr had ordered the police to bring in Ryan and Kelly, the search had been unsuccessful.

"What?" gasped Dr. Hayes, "don't you know how you got out of that mess and why the thugs didn't finish you?"

Wright shook his head. His visitor's manner puzzled him.

"I don't know a thing. I think some one helped me in some way or other, but Dr. Norton claimed he knew nothing."

"Well, I'll be darned!"

"Don't; there's no occasion for it now—you're out of politics. The first thing I knew was when I heard Dr. Norton say, 'He's coming to, all right.'"

Soon Hayes picked up his hat to go. He stood for an instant, as if inviting Wright to speak. As he did not do so, the visitor asked, thinking of Gloria the while:

"Is there anything you want to know, now that you're going on a vacation, or would you like me to deliver any messages?"

"No, none." Then after a pause, "It is better so."

"Well, I'm off," remarked the doctor. He spoke carefully, to hide his regret, for at heart he keenly sympathized with the man who was making so strong a fight for a principle that love itself had to give way before it. Then he added, apparently as an afterthought, "By the way, I believe that offer for your paper still holds good."

Wright laughed, the little world-weary laugh he had sometimes permitted himself since he and Gloria had parted in Judge Gilbert's office.

"My vacation has started," he answered, and I'm not talking business. But you can tell Judge Gilbert for me that the Belmont News is not on the market for his clients."

"All right, I'll tell him," Hayes replied as they shook hands. "Here's good luck to you on your vacation."

Wright smiled grimly, the thought that good luck would perch upon his standard was a sorry hope. He refused to bind himself to the truth with any fleeting consolation such as that.

CHAPTER XXII.

The morning after the election, Gloria called for the Banner as soon as she awakened. The headlines told her at once that her father had been defeated.

She searched carefully through the paper for some reference to Joe Wright, but no mention was made of him. Naturally enough, the Banner was not in a jubilant mood. It predicted dire things in store for Belmont, but Gloria, remembering what she had learned at so bitter a cost, felt that any change must be for the better.

The girl had now recovered from the first severity of the shock, and was anxious to know for a certainty what had become of Wright. She knew that he lived and was not seriously injured, else there would have been some mention of him in the paper. The day previous she had thought much of him, but there had been much else for her to think of. Now with a return to what was to be for her the normal, she wanted to know how he fared.

All the morning Gloria spent in revolving in her mind just what she ought to do. She knew that her father meant Wright harm. Pride and maidenly reserve wrestled with what she considered her duty. Her conscience told her that before she left Belmont forever she should warn this man who once had loved her. He must be placed on his guard against her own father. It cut her like a knife to think that the attack on the editor had really been made at her command. Now she could do no less than tell him how affairs stood.

"SHE LOOKS OLD" AND NOT YET 40

Dr. Hayes could scarcely conceal his surprise when Gloria followed him into the hall after luncheon and asked about Mr. Wright's condition. He told her that he still kept to his room, but was reported as improving. Before he could frame a question, Gloria thanked him and fled up the stairs. About three o'clock she emerged from her room, dressed for the street, and announced to Mrs. Hayes that she was going for a short walk alone.

What the daughter of David Kerr told her hostess was the truth. She did go for a short walk, a walk that took her in the most direct way to the house where Joe Wright resided. The door was opened for her by a little girl who invited her to enter.

"I wish to see Mr. Wright," Gloria explained to the child.

"I'll take you to his sitting-room. He told me to bring anybody in that came to see him, and to tell 'em he'd be back in a minute."

All was silence in the room when the little girl threw wide the door and bade her enter.

"Then he's not in the house, you say?"

"No, he's gone to get a baggageman, but he said to wait," Patty insisted.

"Whom did he wish to wait?"

"Oh, anybody. He said somebody's coming to pack his books. He hurt himself and can't bend over the box."

"Oh!" cried Gloria, with a little gasp of pain. She remembered all too well the hurt of which he complained. Then at the same time came a new thought, why was he packing his books?

"A more critical look showed her many evidences that he was giving up his apartment. She could not understand.

"Is Mr. Wright moving everything?" she ventured.

"Yes, he's going away."

Gloria gazed at the child in surprise, not quite grasping what she said. A smothered exclamation caused her to look up quickly. There, staring at her from the doorway in honest amazement, stood Joe Wright. She felt her cheeks crimson.

"Miss Kerr! You here!" he gasped, before he could master his surprise. Then in an instant he went on in an even, conventional tone, "I beg your pardon, I scarcely expected to find you here."

"No, I—I scarcely expected to find myself here, but here I am." As she said this she extended her hands, then dropped them, a gesture which seemed to typify the simplicity with which the visit had been accomplished.

Wright readily recognized that there was some motive in the call, and dismissed Patty with instructions to let him know if anyone asked for him.

"Won't you sit down?" he begged, remembering his duty as host.

"Thank you, I haven't a moment to stay."

Wright looked about for a chair, to find them filled with odds and ends of things intended to be packed. The girl insisted that she preferred to stand, and listened to his apology for the appearance of the room and the explanation that he was moving.

Dinner Stories

Dinner stories—Past stall after stall went the rich merchant, followed by a footman in smart livery. It was the annual village bazaar.

"Ah, Mr. Fitzbrendon," said a really sweet and charming lady at one of the stalls, "and what are you going to buy? Dear old auntie and I are running this table, and we have home-made cakes, aprons, penwipers and—"

"Yes," said F., "and I'll buy just one of each. But do you sell kisses at your stall?"

"Oh, certainly!" came the ready reply. "One guinea each."

"Right!" replied the autocrat. "Then I'll take a couple—and good measure, please."

"Aunt," remarked the fair and dainty dame, "forward, please! Two kisses for this gentleman!"

For a moment the man of means was nonplussed, but only for a moment. Then he turned to his servant:

"James," he said coolly, "just take this purchase, please!"

Mrs. Newbridge came hurriedly into her husband's study one morning.

"Herbert, dear," she said, "this recipe for lemon pie says to sit on a hot stove and stir constantly."

"Well, Alice," replied the doting husband, "if you'd sit on a hot stove I think you will find that you will stir constantly."

"Yes, he's going away."

Gloria gazed at the child in surprise, not quite grasping what she said. A smothered exclamation caused her to look up quickly. There, staring at her from the doorway in honest amazement, stood Joe Wright. She felt her cheeks crimson.

"Miss Kerr! You here!" he gasped, before he could master his surprise. Then in an instant he went on in an even, conventional tone, "I beg your pardon, I scarcely expected to find you here."

"No, I—I scarcely expected to find myself here, but here I am." As she said this she extended her hands, then dropped them, a gesture which seemed to typify the simplicity with which the visit had been accomplished.

Wright readily recognized that there was some motive in the call, and dismissed Patty with instructions to let him know if anyone asked for him.

"Won't you sit down?" he begged, remembering his duty as host.

"Thank you, I haven't a moment to stay."

Wright looked about for a chair, to find them filled with odds and ends of things intended to be packed. The girl insisted that she preferred to stand, and listened to his apology for the appearance of the room and the explanation that he was moving.

Dollars Come Easy Sometimes.

Some men find it pretty hard to make a dollar. Others find it easy.

Most always this is DUE TO THE MAN, NOT THE DOLLAR. A dollar is not particular, it doesn't care whose pocket it lands in. It generally goes to the FELLOW WHO IS ON THE LOOKOUT FOR IT.

There are dollars in this newspaper and they are coming your way. In the Want Ad section there are Real Estate investment dollars, Second Hand Furniture Dollars, Dollars from the Boarder or Roomer, you may secure Dollars from the help you can get and dollars for the service you can render.

If you don't get them it is your fault, not the dollar's.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are many number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.
